EMS Town Hall

*Moderator: Christian Zuver, MD;
Panelists: Deborah Beidel, PhD;
Angus Jameson, MD; Sheriff Dennis
Lemma; Steve McCoy*

There have been many policy changes, other decisions, and challenges made recently that have and will continue to affect how we provide EMS in Florida. Join us for a discussion on these and other pertinent topics in EMS, including first responder mental health. We will be hosting some of the most prominent leaders in our state and look forward to hearing from you as well!

Learning Objectives:

- Review and discuss current issues affecting the provision of emergency medical services.
- Review and discuss the future of EMS in Florida.

3:00 PM - 3:55 PM: OSCEOLA C

EMS Guide to Mentoring New Employees: Don't Eat Our Young

Kevin Binnall, PMD

Mentoring is not new to any industry. The old ways of "sit down and shut up" mentoring in EMS are long gone. In order to become a successful clinician and provider, being a mentor is essential. Where do we start? What types of personalities are required? How would a positive mentor have shaped my early career paths? What should I do as a mentor? All these questions and more will be revealed in a candid, honest lookback at one career and how we can mentor our young to become successful in EMS.

Learning Objectives:

- Learn why it is important to become a role model to younger EMT's, paramedics and firefighters for the betterment of each public safety discipline in Florida.

- Learn what it takes to become a successful mentor.
- Learn how to successfully create a positive learning environment as mentors.
- Learn why mentoring is essential to the survival of EMS as a profession.
- Learn how to foster positive intrapersonal relationships beyond the ambulance or station.
- Learn how to challenge yourself to become better clinicians, providers and leaders in your perspective departments.

4:00 PM - 4:55 PM: OSCEOLA C

What We Learned From Playing Together in the Proverbial Sandbox

*Moderator: Angel Nater, PMD;
Panelists: Susan Bitar, RN, MSN, CMC, CMOM, CMIS; Starla Lowry, MSN, Ed; Jaime Magnetico-Walsh, EdD, RRT, RRT-ACCS, RRT-NPS; Shahin Kanani, MD*

Panelists will present their experiences of collaborating together to plan, prepare and deliver a successful interprofessional simulation exercise utilizing students from the Criminal Justice Academy, EMS Academy, Fire Academy, Nursing, Pharmacy Tech and Respiratory program. Presenters will include the program manager for each program. There will be a brief review of ARDS and current treatment modalities.

Learning Objectives:

- Comprehend the value of interprofessional simulation and the importance of working outside of their silos.
- Appreciate the challenges and time commitment required to plan an IP simulation exercise.
- Learn how to create your own interprofessional simulation exercises.

Saving Face: NIV versus Intubation... and Other Bedside Decisions in Critical Care Transport

By Jon Inkrott, RRT, RRT-ACCS

Critical care transport decisions can have a profound impact on patient care and outcomes. In the context of Covid-19, there were many decisions that had to be made with respect to invasive or non-invasive ventilation modalities. Those same decisions need to be addressed in the non-Covid-19 respiratory failure patient. This presentation will focus on the invasive and non-invasive approaches to ventilation and highlight the success and predictors of failure in these patients. A case study will also be discussed.

Learning Objectives:

- Discuss the psychological aspect of airway control.
- Explain and describe benefits and risks of invasive and noninvasive ventilation in acute hypoxemic patients and recognize predictors of failure.
- Identify evidence-based approaches to initiating noninvasive ventilation in the pre-hospital and emergency setting.

The Schedule

- Review case history of hypoxic and hypercarbic respiratory failure and the transport decision making process.

10:00 AM - 10:55 AM: OSCEOLA C

Stress, Distress and PTSD - Recognizing and Reaching Out

By Shaun Fix, PMD, NRT

Since 1994, Shaun Fix has watched several fire/EMS friends suffer with what has been called, over the years, stress, distress, CIS and PTSD. Of those, one died; another lost his career; and two eventually recovered. Amid a culture of silence, more firefighters are dying of suicide than by other line of duty deaths. This program is designed for all fire and EMS personnel and covers the common elements of career dissipation, including burn out, stress and career planning, and understanding common mental health triggers such as divorce and drug/alcohol abuse. We also stress the importance of knowing what type of available resources and options are available to help individuals when they are struggling. The focus is on recognizing issues, both in yourself and in coworkers. "Going to work happy, without chemicals!" is the goal.

Learning Objectives:

- Review the common signs of stress and burnout.
- Discuss interventions to assist co-workers in identifying issues that may be affecting their mental health.
- Analyze strategies to address concerns to an individual, or to a supervisor.
- List resources that are available to individuals to access during times of crisis.
- Outline appropriate steps in managing critical incidents in the workplace.

11:00 AM - 11:55 AM: OSCEOLA C

Crisis Stress Teams and Stress First Aid

By Richard Clinchy, Ph.D, EMT-P

Following his presentation at the Governor's Hurricane Conference, Dr. Clinchy will share the how and why of a local or regional Crisis Stress Team along with his team's history. Stress First Aid is somewhat new to Florida. Dr. Clinchy will also introduce this concept of preventive stress management in the first responder community.

Learning Objectives:

- Attendees will learn how to organize a local or regional Crisis Stress Team.
- Participants will understand how such a team is different and perhaps superior to peer support and why.
- Those in attendance will learn the basics of Stress First Aid and how to introduce Stress First Aid to their agency.

12:00 PM - 12:45 PM:

Lunch

1:00 PM - 1:25 PM: OSCEOLA C

Fluids, Pressors, Blood, and Diesel

By Austin Johnson, RN, EMT-P

Critical care transport has its own challenges as a specialty, including doing the best for the patient with limited resources. This session will focus on optimizing the hemodynamic status of a critical patient in the inter-facility transport setting. We will take a look at considerations for the crew at the sending facility, during transport, and upon arrival at the receiving facility.

Learning Objectives:

- Provide an overview of the primary survey of a critical patient.
- Discuss interventions and monitoring techniques for the transport team at the BLS, ALS, and Critical Care levels.

- Discuss common pharmacological interventions for the hemodynamically unstable, critical patient.

1:30 PM - 2:25 PM: OSCEOLA C

Tips & Tricks for Difficult Intubations

By Shaun Fix, PMD, NRT

This segment will deal specifically with placing an endotracheal tube in the patient that is "hard to tube." While other devices are an option, and often a good choice, this lecture is designed to review the anatomy, positioning techniques and devices to be successful at intubation. Through the use of photos, videos and review of adjunctive intubation devices, this program will present current variations of the standard technique to assist the provider for optimal success.

Learning Objectives:

- Describe indications, contraindications, and complications of endotracheal intubation.
- Discuss the various types of airway adjuncts.
- Review presentations and scenarios of difficult intubations.
- Demonstrate specific intubation techniques for suspected head or spinal trauma injuries.
- Review neutral c-spine intubation technique.
- Discuss various intubation positions for the challenging patient-occiput elevated, semi fowlers, sky hook etc.

2:30 PM - 4:00 PM: LANIER AB

Skills Lab: Tips & Tricks for Difficult Intubations

By Shaun Fix, PMD, NRT

Test your new knowledge from the previous lecture with a hands-on skills lab.
